[From the New York Ledger.] Case of Imagination.

BY EMERSON BENNETT.

It is a well-established fact, that the mind has a direct and important action the body; and to a much greater extent than persons in general suppose. During the prevalence of an epidemic, for instance, such as the cholera, thousands become afflicted through their own fancy, who would otherwise escape the fell destroyer. We well remember when this scourge was last upon us, of hearing several individuals spoken of as likely to perish with the disease, for the simple reason that they were constantly in dread and fear of it; and we noted the fact, that these same persons rarely lived out the season; while, on the other hand, those who seemed to care little about it, and in some cases scoffed at and defied it, were seldom touched by the invisible foe No one can tell what the mind is, or how it acts upon the body; but we have constant evidence of its presence and power, through one of its attributes, the will; and we are sometimes astonished at its increased force, when stimulated by passion or fear. Two men were chopping in a wood, and one of them was crushed by a tree falling upon nim. The other, under the excitement of the occasion, ran up, lifted off the tree, picked up the dead body and carried it home. He went back the next day, with some of his neighbors, and made the to him surprising discovery, that with the utmost exertion of his strength he could not stir the huge trunk in the slightest degree. Yet the same physical man was there, but not in the same mental condition, and he owed all his extra strength to his then unduly excited state of mind. Both passion and fear are known also to produce the opposite effects—to par-alyze or weaken the vital energies instead of strengthening them; grief generally depresses and sometimes proves fatal, and both lisappointment and joy have been known to kill; but all of these only demonstrate the close connection of mind with body, and show how much the latter may be af fected by the former.

In a conversation with a distinguished physician of our acquaintance upon this subject, he related a case of the striking effects of imagination, or mind upon body, which student at L -. A lecture by one of the am not mistaken, you feel now. How is it came under his own observation while a faculty, touching upon imagination and its am I not right? strange effects, became a subject of discussion in his class; and the question shortly arose, whether it was not rather the body that affected the mind than the mind the

'I contend," said one, "that the body first becomes affected by some morbid influence, and the mind of course takes its tone there from. If the brain be injured, unconscious ness, or insanity, follows in the same degree. With a healthy body and a sound, well-de veloped brain, we may look for clear, sound, discriminating mental faculties, which can not be impaired while the physical man remains unchanged." 'I maintain," said another, "that the mind may be first affected, and so impair the body, as in cases of mental excitement, such as grief, joy, fear, horror, shame, chagrin and disappointment. The students took sides on the question, and the matter was ably argued pro and and if you feel weak, go to bed, and if cold, con, each party about equally maintaining its assumed position. In all questions of a nature permitting a strong argument on either side, it is fair to presume that both parties have truth for a foundation, and neither has the whole truth; and so it was in this case—the fact being that the mind does affect the body and the body the mind.

But something more than argument was wanted in this case; medical students like to try experiments and witness practical demonstrations; and it was finally agreed that a perfectly healthy subject should be selected and put under the effects of imagi nation. A young, robust, rosy-cheeked farmer, who occasionally came into town to dispose of his fruit, and who had found some of his best customers among the students, was finally fixed upon as an individual in every way satisfactory for the trial. The plan was, for some of the students, at different times and in different places, without any appearance of collusion, to be struck with his altered looks-to perceive some se cret malady beginning to affect him-and finally to predict his death at a given time, With this understanding, they went deliber ately to work the next time he appeared among them. He finally reached home, more dead than alive, informed his parents of what had occurred, took to his bed, and gradually grew worse. In spite of his protestations, they sent for a doctor; but it so happened that the latter was away on a consultation in a eighboring town, and did not return in time to see him the next day. The day following, young Giles, with several others, went to visit him, and report upon the case. Each grave is numbered and a register is kept at the office of Bragg's dier. By ascertaining the number of the grave and refering to the register, the name of the deceased can be found out, and relaives can recover the remains hereafter. This is a very good plan, and ought to be idopted in our own army. MACK.

[From the Cincinnati Dollar Times.] Remarkable Cases in Surgery.

Having always heard and been taught to believe that cancerous diseases were the most dangerous and difficult to cure of any known, and hearing of some very remarka ble cures made by Dr. O. E. Newton, of this city, we have been induced to investigate the matter, hoping to benefit those so painfully afflicted, by examining some of the cases he has had, and, some who are still under his treatment. In doing so, we have visited his office frequently, and will make brief men ion of some cases referred to.

Mr. Lewis Lancaster, of Harrodsburg, Ky. who has had cancer of the face, but who is now nearly cured and ready to go home. It has been of years' standing, but now seems to be entirely removed and the wound rapdly healing. Also, Mr. Geo. Rainey, of the same place, having a very angry cancer overing the entire back of the hand, and as bad as it is possible to exist. Is being suc essfully treated, and is rapidly yielding to he attention given it. A remarkable fact attending this case is, that the patient, al though receiving active treatment from the Doctor, experiences less pain than before he commenced the treatment

He is in fine spirits, and only regrets not surprise and alarm, inquired how he felt, attention from physicians who had not had a very extensive knowledge of this disease. We also saw Mr. Holman, from Mercer county, Ky., who had a malignant cancer of the lip, who was nearly cured, and would leave for home in a few days. Mr. Holman had previously received treatment from other surgeons before applying to Dr. Newton, and without success or gaining any re-He expressed himself as well satisfied with the cure. Dougherty, of Mount Holly, Clermont county, O., who had just been cured of cancer of the face.

In looking over the doctor's cabinet of morbid specimens, we found cancers and tumors removed and cured by him, of every tage in growth and character. The case of Judge Caldwell, of Upper Sandusky, O., of cancer of the face of long standing, and which caused him great apprehensions, was successfully treated. George Gosling, Bevis P. MAJOR-GENERAL CRITTENDEN'S FAREWELL TO HIS CORPS.—We subjoin the manly and touching address in which Major-General Crittenden took leave of his late command, with whom he is now more than ever before the object of enthusiastic devotion :

With great truth does the gallant Crittenden say "the mighty hand of the 21st Army Corps has graven the name of its commander on famous pages of the past." A more gallant Corps, or braver and better officer not exist. At Shiloh, Stone River, Chickamauga, and throughout all the varied career of General C., he has vindicated his just claim to the love of his men, and the confidence and admiration of the Nation. He has been one of the most successful Corps commanders in all this war. At ment, "now and forever, one and inseparable." Shiloh he was conspicuous-at Stone River, he and the 21st Corps saved Rosecrans' army from a disastrous defeat. He has never failed-his foot has never slipped-he has never been surprised, but always vigilant, daring and energetic, has won a position and a name, which all the malignity, selfishness and meanness of Halleck and Stanton can-

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal: To meet and silence some of the idle but malicious rumors floating up from the battlefield of Chickamauga, originated by bad men for the purpose of traducing one of Kentucky's noblest sons, who, however, stands much too high to be reached by the malevolent shafts of those newspaper jayhawkers of reputation, some of whom would thus retaliate for the honor of having been kicked out of his camp, I conceive it my privilege and duty, by express direction of Colonel Wil der, to publish his statement of the personal bearing of Major-General Crittenden in

NEW GROCERY STORE.

THE undersigned having purchased of W. A. GAINES his grocery establishment, in the city of Frankfort, will continue the business at the old stand, on St. Clair street, next door to the Post Office.

I will have, in a short time, and will always keep on hand, a good supply of FAMILY GROCERIES, and all articles usually kept in an establishment of the kind, which will be sold at Small Profits, for Cash.

No accounts will be kept with any one, but goods will be sold low for cash.

I have made arragements with MR. GAINES to continue in the house, and the business will be conducted, mainly, by him. He is authorized to use or sign my name for any business transactions

I respectfully solicit a liberal patronage from the citizens of Frankfort and adjoining counties, and hope by fair dealing and low prices to obtain it.

R. P. PEPPER.

UNITED STATES CLAIM AGENCY

THERE WAS COMMITTED TO THE JAIL LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY.

NOTICE

H. B. WILSON, (Late Lt. Col. 44th O. V. I.)T. L. HOUSTON.

WILSON, HOUSTON & CO., WILL prosecute and collect all classes of valid claims against the Government of the United States.

Special attention will be given to the collection of claims founded upon Quartermasters' vouchers, and memorandum receipts, and claims arising from the destruction of private property by the armies of the United States. Bounty Money, Back Pay, and Pensions due to discharged soldiers, the widows or heirs of de-ceased soldiers, and back pay due to resigned of-ficers of the army, will be promptly collected. One of the firm will reside in Washington, for the special purpose of prosecuting the class of claims which will require attention at that place. Our long experience in the army has made us familiar with the business in which we have embarked, and we solicit correspondence, believing that we can be of much service to those who will entrust the collection of claims to us.

OFFICE—Opposite the Court House, two doors from Tilford & Barclay's Bank, Lexington, Ky.
